THE VICKSBURG DISPATCHES.

THE VICKSBURG DISPATCHES—GEN. PEMBERTON'S DISPATCHES AND ARMY PARTICULARS.

Headquarters, Jan 1st, 1863.

Gen. S Cooper:

The expedition [illegible] has fully accomplished its object. The [illegible] returned to various places. A large [illegible] have been destroyed, many miles repaired, and [illegible] prisoners secured. General Sherman has done his work, but has not effected a [illegible]. The enemy in Tennessee and [illegible] telegraphic communication with this place.

(Signed) LIEUTENANT GENERAL PEMBERTON.

[SECOND DISPATCH.]

The enemy has shelled the [illegible] and is falling back. We occupy the whole field and shall follow. General Wright [illegible] is a complete trophy of [illegible] on the field and Lake. He captured and destroyed three hundred wagons loaded with baggage and commissary stores, and paroled seven hundred prisoners. He is again behind them, and has captured an ordnance train. To-day he secured several thousand stand of small arms. The body of Brig-Gen Gist was left on the field; and three others are reported to have been killed. God has granted us a happy New Year.

(Signed) BRAXTON BRAGG.

ANOTHER DISPATCH FROM GEN. BRAGG—MORE FIGHTING—HEAVY LOSS, &C.

CHATTANOOGA, Jan. 3.

The following official dispatch has just been received here:

MURFREESBORO' Jan. 2.

The enemy retreated last night but a short distance in rear of his former position. We had a sharp and short contest this evening. We drew his left flank from position, but our attacking party again retired with considerable loss on both sides. Wheeler and Wharton were again in their rear yesterday and captured two hundred prisoners, one piece of artillery and destroyed two hundred loaded wagons.

(Signed) BRAXTON BRAGG.

YANKEE PRISONERS—OUR WOUNDED, &C.

CHATTANOOGA, Jan. 3.

Among the prisoners brought here within the last two days twenty-three different regiments are represented.

Three cars in a train loaded with our wounded jerked from the track six miles from Bridgeport on Friday morning and seven soldiers were killed. The train was coming from Murfreesboro.

THE ENEMY ABANDON THE ATTACK UPON VICKSBURG—DISPATCH FROM GEN. PEMBERTON.

RICHMOND, Jan. 3.—1 p. m.

The following dispatch has been received at the War Office.

VICKSBURG, Jan. 2.

The enemy finding all his efforts unavailing to make any inroads upon our position here, have re-embarked, leaving considerable quantities of entrenching tools and other property, and apparently has relinquished his design upon Vicksburg.

(Signed) J. C. PEMBERTON.
Lt. Gen. Commanding.

THE YANKEES REPULSED AT VICKSBURG.

[SECOND DISPATCH.]

RICHMOND, Jan. 3.

A telegram received at the War Department from Gen. Pemberton states that the Abolitionists have abandoned the attack upon Vicksburg and have taken to their boats bound up the river.

PRESIDENT DAVIS AT PETERSBURG.

PETERSBURG, Jan 4.

President Davis reached here this afternoon, at 4 o'clock, and was greeted at the Southern Depot by an immense crowd, cheering loudly and clamorous for a speech. The President responded briefly, in which he spoke most encouragingly of our prospects West and South.

J W Epps, of Brunswick, Va., died here suddenly last night.

ARRIVAL OF PRESIDENT DAVIS AT RICHMOND.

RICHMOND, Jan. 4.

President Davis arrived here this evening in good health and fine spirits.

MRS. GEN. LEONIDAS POLK is at present stopping in Asheville, in this State. The distinguished lady could not find a more pleasant retreat in these exciting times or be among a more hospitable people while exiled from her own home.

LATEST FROM THE NORTH.

The Enquirer of Saturday has the following special dispatch:

FREDERICKSBURG, Jan. 2d, 1863.

I have just received Northern dates of the first instant.

A Western correspondent of the New York "Herald" writes:

The steamers Violet, Key West, Rose, Douglas, Frederick, Miotrebe, Erie No. 6 and Van Buren, with cargoes of grain and provisions, and also a large amount of army stores, have been burnt by the enemy at Van Buren, Ark. Our forces burnt the arsenal and ferry-boat at Fort Smith to prevent their falling into the hands of the enemy; also a large amount of forage and provisions.

It is telegraphed from the West that two regiments of Missourians in our service have stacked arms and gone home, and that another Missouri regiment went home carrying their arms with them. It is also stated that two regiments of Texans stacked arms and started home, and that a regiment of cavalry, who were sent in pursuit, joined them.

A dispatch from Baltimore says the mistake of Stuart's crossing the Potomac grew out of the fact that White's cavalry have been seen on the North side of the Potomac for several days.

The garrison at Carlisle is on half rations.

James Brooks made a speech in New York city, on Tuesday evening last, at a meeting, at which resolutions were adopted unanimously requesting New Jersey, on account of her revolutionary history and past associations to invite

---

[illegible] Washington, on the 31st and testified to the [illegible] special [illegible].

[illegible] with the first of January the Yankee troops [illegible] at the rate of $500,000 per day.

A letter from Beaufort's headquarters, dated the 26th ult., says: "I will never attempt to cross again in front of Fredericksburg as long as there is a rebel battery to [illegible] my passage." It characterizes Gen. [illegible] movement as a mystery, and also says that the pontoons are again on the move, and thinks it quite significant.

The Yankees say they have a surplus still on hand which [illegible] Gen. Stuart's achievements. We shall discover by and by.

SHUART'S RAID ROUND THE YANKEES.

The late raid of Gen. Stuart was a complete success.—The Richmond Enquirer says:

Gen. Stuart returned from his late raid on New Year's evening, having been absent about ten days, during which time he visited Dumfries, where he made the capture before mentioned, and then proceeded up the Potomac to the [illegible] of Alexandria. Arriving at Catharine's Ford, in the Occoquan, he encountered a large force of the enemy's cavalry, which he routed, there scattering their forces and [illegible] in their vicinity. The expedition then proceeded to the line of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, where they burnt the bridge over Accotink Creek, from thence to Annandale, and then to within seven miles of Alexandria. There he destroyed a large quantity of the Federal stores.

At the point Stuart's telegraph operator telegraphed to Gen. Meigs, at Washington, (the Yankee Quartermaster General,) that, "if he could not furnish more and better transportation, he (Stuart) could not take the trouble to come after supplies, as it was too much trouble to haul them away." Gen. S. then took the route for the Loudoun and Hampshire Railroad. At Fairfax Court-House he was first upon by the Yankees with artillery, when he retired, and going up to Aldie, routed a force of the enemy, capturing some prisoners. He proceeded thence to Warrenton, and then to camp. His troops supplied themselves with clothing, arms, &c., in abundance. His prisoners number altogether about 300, and the quantity of stores destroyed was very large."

THE EXPRESS COMPANY AND THE WAR.

We learn from the Richmond Examiner that the Secretary of War has now under advisement the claims of the Southern Express Company to have their employees released from the present exactions of the conscription law.

This question, truly remarks the Charleston Mercury, involves much of the interests of the Government, the welfare of the army, and the convenience of the public. It seems to us that there can be no comparison between the value of the company as an aid to the Government and a constant minister to the wants of the army and that of the small accession which its whole numbers of employees would make to the military force. The company is now fulfilling contracts made with nearly all the departments of the Government, and every branch of the public service is indebted to it for valuable and indispensible aid. It is almost a daily occurrence for this company to bring in Government freight ahead of special agents of the Quartermaster and Ordnance officer. In the rapid and prompt transportation of ordnance supplies, valuable freight, public funds, &c., the services of the company are important, and are really such as to entitle it to a part of the machinery of the Government.

But it is not only as an organ of the public service that the Southern Express Company requires the consideration of the Government. It is the minister to a thousand wants in our army. Our troops in the field get through the Government only the crude, heavy supplies necessary for their subsistence. All other articles—charitable supplies, home presents, and the thousand small articles, so acceptable to the soldier and so necessary to his comfort—are brought to him by this Express. We believe that there is scarcely a soldier in the army who would not have reason to feel the suspension of these conveniences of the Express a sore privation. It is needless to say that such a suspension, so far as the general interests of the community are concerned, would be a public calamity.

SHIPMENTS FROM NEW YORK FOR THE FRENCH ARMY IN MEXICO.—The New York Tribune learns that supplies for the French army in Mexico have been purchased in New York, and that shipments have already taken place. These supplies, according to the Tribune, embrace large orders for machinery and material for the military railway now being constructed between Vera Cruz and Orizaba. Three large ships have been openly chartered and freighted with general supplies. Still later orders have come hither, according to advices from Vera Cruz, for one thousand mules with harness, and five hundred wagons.—The Tribune intimates, interrogatively, that the Federal government ought to interfere, and that if it does not stop its citizens aiding the French in conquering Mexico, it has no business to complain of England for fitting out vessels for the Confederates.

SALT.—We have it from good authority that on Friday last, salt sold in Augusta, at 28 cents per pound per sack; and that it was offered at 26 cents per pound at retail in the same city. This decline in the price of salt indicates a large supply on hand, or a less demand for it than we have anticipated at this season of the year. We are not advised of the price of salt in this market to-day. On Saturday it was sold by the sack at $50 per hundred—that is Virginia salt commanded that price.—Atlanta Intilligencer.

FLAG PRESENTED.—Major General G. W. Smith was, a few days ago, presented by a lady of Baltimore with a most beautiful silk battle flag. We regret that it would not be safe for us to mention the name of the lady presenting it. The compliment was well deserved, and the beautiful flag is in hands that will defend it and the country it represents.—Enquirer.

RICHMOND, Nov. 27, 1862.

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 96.

Commandants of conscripts will cause the following order to be published for at least seven times in a sufficient number of newspapers in each State of the Confederacy to ensure its reaching every part of the country.

I. All commissioned officers and enlisted men who are now absent from their commands from any other causes than actual disability, or duty under orders from the Sec'y of War, or from their department commanders will return to their commands without delay.

II. Commissioned officers failing to comply with the provisions of the foregoing paragraph within a reasonable length of time, in no case to exceed twenty days after the publication of this order, shall be dropped from the rolls of the army in disgrace, and their names will be furnished to the commandant of conscripts for enlistment in the ranks.

III. All enlisted men who shall fail to comply with the provisions of paragraph I., of this order, within a reasonable length of time, shall be considered as deserters, and treated accordingly, their names to be furnished to the commandant of conscripts, in their State, for publication, or such other action as may be deemed most efficacious.

IV. In order to ensure the efficient co-operation of all concerned to carry this order into immediate effect, Department Commanders are directed to require from the commanding officer of each separate command in their Departments a prompt report of the names of all commissioned officers and enlisted men now absent from their commands. These reports must state in each case the cause of absence, and any regimental, battalion or company commander who shall neglect to furnish such a report, or who shall knowingly be guilty of concealing any case of unauthorized absence, shall, on conviction thereof, be summarily dismissed.

V. Under the provisions of the 2d clause of paragraph I. of General Orders No. 83 commissioned officers and privates who are incapable of bearing arms in consequence of wounds received in battle, but who are otherwise fit for service, are required, if not otherwise assigned to report to the nearest commandant of conscripts in their respective States who will, if they are fitted for such duty, assign them to the collection of stragglers and the enforcement of the provisions of this order, with full power to call upon the nearest military authority for such assistance as may be necessary thereto.

VI. President Davis.

His Excellency, President Davis, accompanied by his staff and W. L. Yancey, arrived at Raleigh on Saturday afternoon last. Mr. Davis was introduced to the crowd at the depot by Hon. D. M. Barringer, when he proceeded to address them in a few remarks. He took occasion to acknowledge the support given the government by Gov. Vance, (whom it was said he had come to throw all the obstacles possible in the way of the administration) and paid a glowing tribute to the State and to the gallantry of her troops. He had gone to the West depressed, but came back elated. All was well there. We had gained great victories at ... Vicksburg and Murfreesboro. He had never believed that the Yankees would yield, until they felt the iron hand on them, and now that we had ... them severely, we had a bright future before us.

Mr. Yancey was introduced by Maj. W. A. Blount, Jr., and made a few remarks. He believed we had ... Yankees in their hearts and that our Government ... Recognized. Head Quarters ... N. C., Dec. 29, 1862.

Gen. S. Cooper, Adjutant and Inspector General, Richmond, Va.:

General: I have the honor to enclose copies of the reports of Brig. Gen. Evans, Robertson, ... giving an account of the various affairs with the enemy in this vicinity in their recent bridge burning and pillaging ... from Newbern.

Brig-Gen. Evans, with two thousand (2,000) men, held them in check at Southwest Creek, beyond Kinston, on the 14th, ... same time, and skirmished in order to keep the ... with small loss, to the left bank of the Neuse river, Kinston. He held them at bay until the 16th, when they advanced on the opposite side of the river and made an attack at White Hall bridge, about eighteen (18) miles below Goldsboro, in which they were driven back by Gen. Robertson with severe loss.

Small reinforcements arrived from Petersburg and Wilmington on the 15th one regiment of which was placed in position to cover the railroad bridge over the Neuse, near this place. A battalion of artillery which had made a successful retreat from the works of the obstructions below Kinston after the enemy had occupied the latter point in force, was stationed on this side of the river, at the railroad bridge, and about a half a mile above county bridge. On the 16th a regiment arrived from Wilmington, and one from Petersburg, both of which were sent to the right bank of the river, and placed under Gen. Clingman's command, to protect the two bridges.

On the morning of the 17th, having no cavalry, and being unable to obtain information by other means, I detached Lieut. Col. Stevens, of the Engineers, with two brigades and five pieces of artillery, to make a reconnoissance, for the purpose of ascertaining the position and numbers of the enemy. Gen. Evan's brigade had then reached Goldsboro', by rail, and remaining on board, only awaited the clearing of the track and watering of the engines to move by rail to the position already occupied by Gen. Clingman with his three regiments. About ten o'clock a half hour before the railroad bridge was ... the casualty of the water tanks being inadequate for the amount of transportation ... stated here at that time, the cars were delayed until ... 12 o'clock for want of rails; another train ... appeared in force before Gen. Clingman ... reported that he withdrew across the county bridge to the east of that river. The artillery of the enemy ... the railroad bridge; and Evans ... forward by the county ... bridge a half mile above the ...

About two o'clock in the afternoon the ... and ... incendiary succeeded in reaching the ... ed by the wing ... the obstruction ... A flame ... which soon destroyed the superstructure, ... the ... and ... Yesterday morning, the 18th, ... had ordered from Richmond, were hourly expected.

It was very important for us now to save the county bridge, the only means remaining of crossing the river in this vicinity. Evans and Clingman ... over and ... formed by Pettigrew's brigade, and the ... brigade just coming in, was ordered to move forward at once.

The enemy were driven back from their position on the line of the railroad to the ... of the bridges of the ... the ... of the ... and abandoned that side of the river. ... a large portion of the ... that point, ... it was not advisable to attack them in their ... position that evening.

During the night the enemy made a hurried retreat to their fortifications and gunboats, moving with such celerity that it was useless to attempt pursuit with any other arm than cavalry, of which at that time, unfortunately, we had none.

I passed over the railroad from the Neuse bridge to Wilmington on the 24th, and returned last night. The bridge is not being repaired. At present we can subject to the temporary inconvenience of transhipment across the county bridges; but in a few days this will be remedied, and everything restored to the former condition.

I regret that this ... army of invasion did not remain in the interior long enough for us to get at them.—As it is, they burned the superstructure of two bridges which cost originally less than ten thousand dollars, and can be replaced at once, and have utterly failed to attempt to take advantage of the temporary and partial interruption of our railroad line for the purpose of striking a decisive blow at any important point before we could thoroughly re-establish our communication with it.

I beg leave to call your attention to the reports of Lieut. Col. Stevens, Confederate States Engineers, and to Lieut. Col. Paole, as well as to those of the three Brigadier Generals previously named.

Our losses reported at seventy-one killed and two hundred and sixty-eight wounded, and about four hundred missing. Most of the latter were taken prisoners at Kinston bridge, and have since been returned paroled.

I am, General, very respectfully, your ob't serv't,
(Signed) G. W. SMITH,
Major-General Commanding.

The Virginians in the War.—The Grenada (Miss.) Appeal contains a letter, from which we take the following extract:

Dearly as I am imbued with the love of my State, I always did say that Virginia Secessionists would be found further than one from the Gulf States. I mean those who manifested that sentiment on the first secession of the States. The Virginian had everything to lose and nothing to gain, in case a war should grow out of the act.—But deeply tied to principle, such principles as those given forth by Jefferson, they said that above all else, and were willing to sacrifice property, life and all else, to insure that democratic prosperity. They did not do this in an enthusiastic, impulsive movement, but coolly and dispassionately, as men who weigh well the consequences. Their earnestness has been tried in many ways, and in, near all cases they have proven themselves consistent patriots, baring their breasts to receive the brunt of the battle, emptying their purses to meet the wants of the country. The citizens of the Gulf States who manifested their patriotism as a Frenchman does, all in a hurry, while they did right, it did not require half such an effort to become rampant Secessionists; they conditionally have professed said creed, because, at that time, more ever thought the war would be brought to their own doors in volunteering for the defence of principles they did well; but the bare consent to fight does not exhibit the true patriot.—No, for the resistance must needed in times of war appertain to those noble characteristics of devotion and self-sacrifice that distinguished the operations of old. Like the grain of corn that was planted among the rocks it sprang up speedily, because it had not much earth, but when the sun was up it was scorched, for it had no root; so in the patriotism of some of our people—aye with shame, though I mention it, of some Mississippians, who are at home.

Capture and Destruction of a Yankee Cotton Trading Steamboat.—A correspondent of the Mobile Advertiser and Register gives the following account of the recent capture of a boat belonging to the Federals on the Mississippi:

On the 6th instant, as captain Cleveland's squadron of Adams cavalry regiment was on a scout in the upper end of Washington county, on the Mississippi river, they learned that there was a trading boat coming down the river, which had been in the habit of trading with the citizens, giving them such articles as they generally needed in exchange for cotton. Captain Bowles, who was at the time in command of the squadron, adopted a ruse for decoying the boat ashore by hauling several bales of cotton hauled to the river bank. The ruse was successful.

In the meantime Capt. Bowles arranged his men behind the levee, dismounted. No sooner had the boat been made fast, than the charge was sounded, and over the bank the men went. The Yankee hucksters soon found that they were in a fix." We got several hundred pairs of shoes and boots, clothing of all kinds, sailcoa, domestic, flannel, tobacco, fifteen barrels whiskey, cheese, soda, salt, pepper, cotton and wool cards, and a great many other useful articles, besides forty-two prisoners of war, "real blue bellies." Captain Bowles pressed twenty wagons to haul the plunder to the regiment, which is encamped near Greenville, on Deer Creek. A gunboat came in sight, and we set fire to the steamboat, burning up about two hundred bales of cotton and forty sacks of salt on board of her.

Cure of Diptheria.—The Richmond Whig says:

"A gentleman who tried it says that Kerosine, or coal oil, is an almost infallible remedy for the terrible and fatal disease, Diptheria. The remedy is to be applied externally, by rubbing the throat with the oil freely and thoroughly. It has cured numerous cases, as many probably as fifty, in our neighborhood where our informant lives, and he knows of but one case in which it failed. His regards it as the best remedy known for this disease. The remedy is very simple one and easily tried."

Mississippi.—In his message to the Legislature of Mississippi, Gov. Pettus recommends the organization of the militia, to embrace all between sixteen and sixty years of age; those not required to the field, to ... an organized armed patrol, on duty in their respective counties.

Yankee Cruelty.—A gentleman from Western Virginia states that two or three young ladies are imprisoned in the jail at Wheeling, and tied to the floor, on the charge of disloyal sentiments and practices.—Such outrages upon humanity call for the prompt action of our Generals in the West, not upon women, but upon the first male subjects of Pierpont and Lincoln who fall into our hands. They should tie up the first dozen Yankees they capture to the trees, and keep them tied till these young ladies are released.—No measure short of this will ever teach the brutal enemy the first principles of civilization.—Richmond Dispatch.

Holland.—The union of Church and State is dissolved, so far as respects temporal control over the church. After the first of July, while grants are to be continued to a certain number of Protestant and Roman Catholic pastorates, the State would no longer take cognizance of the internal condition of the denominations.

Yankee Cruelty.—A gentleman from Western Virginia states that two or three young ladies are imprisoned in the jail at Wheeling, and tied to the floor, on the charge of disloyal sentiments and practices.—Such outrages upon humanity call for the prompt action of our Generals in the West, not upon women, but upon the first male subjects of Pierpont and Lincoln who fall into our hands. They should tie up the first dozen Yankees they capture to the trees, and keep them tied till these young ladies are released.—No measure short of this will ever teach the brutal enemy the first principles of civilization.—Richmond Dispatch.

Holland.—The union of Church and State is dissolved, so far as respects temporal control over the church. After the first of July, while grants are to be continued to a certain number of Protestant and Roman Catholic pastorates, the State would no longer take cognizance of the internal condition of the denominations.

Tie his cravat, and cut his food;
And I say, as these fancies I weave,
"That is Tom and the woman he wooed."

The years roll on, and then I see
A wedding picture bright and fair;
I look closer, and it's plain to me
That is Tom with the silver hair,
He gives away the lovely bride,
And the guest[illegible]ger, loth to leave
The house of him in whom they're pride—
"Brave old Tom with the empty sleeve."

A Demand for Col. Zarvona's Release.—It gives us great satisfaction to learn from the Richmond papers that Gov. Letcher intends to hold on to the prisoners lately taken by the Virginia force under Gen. Floyd, and to give Lincoln notice that a certain number of them will be placed in the penitentiary in close confinement, and subjected to the same treatment as Col. Zarvona, until that gallant officer is released. Virginia and the whole South will thank Gov. Letcher from the bottom of their hearts for this righteous act. The horrible tyranny which has so long, and with perfect impunity, been perpetrated upon one of the most chivalric and noble spirits of the South will now be brought to an end. Our readers will recollect the capture of a steamboat by Zarvona, dressed in woman's attire, one of the most brilliant and dashing affairs of the war. For this achievement, which would have excited the admiration of a generous enemy, Col. Thomas has ever since been kept in solitary confinement in a prison cell—and lately, a little chink in the outer wall, the only one that let in the light of Heaven, has been closed up.

Iron Clads for the Confederates.—The Boston Commercial Bulletin states, on what it considers "reliable and indisputable authority," that "an extraordinary effort is to be made by commissioners from the rebel government, as well as by rebel sympathizers in England, to furnish and fit out iron clad and swift sailing steamers, not only for the purpose of breaking the blockade, but to successfully cope, if they be allowed the opportunity, with some of our own navy, or make a raid upon some unprotected harbor."

The Federal papers now say that the reason why Burnside was defeated was because one of his divisions did not make a flank movement as ordered. All on account of the weather. A poor excuse is better than none.

The New Issue.—The new Confederate notes of the denomination of one dollar are coming into circulation. They are handsomely printed on pink paper, and the engraving is finely executed on steel—a great improvement on the old notes.

LUXUMBERG.

THERE BEING MORE LAND IN THE TRACT THAN I need, I would sell a part, say 100 acres of the LUXUMBERG NURSERY TRACT OF LAND, about one-third being woodland, and within one mile of the town of Greensboro', N. C. This very valuable tract of land has on it one of the best orchards in the State, containing some ten thousand choice and select fruit-bearing trees of the different varieties, viz: Apricots, Pears, Nectarines, Plums, Cherries, a fine selection of Peaches
